“ I have just learned of Gladys' passing, and to me it doesn't seem random that she left on Good Friday, or that her memorial was on Orthodox Easter. Somehow very fitting of the good person that she was. Hers was the warm and enthusiastic love I felt every Friday throughout the 60's when she arrived to help my mother "Teese" clean and organize our home and life. We truly bonded sometime in my first decade when she and I found each other simultaneously spellbound in awe, causing us to "hold on tight" during a summertime lightening strike (we felt the heat!) on a tall pine just outside our family room's big window. A few months after my 13th birthday, my family moved out of state, and I never again experienced Fridays with as much celebration and family love. As I grew older, and through her ongoing relationship with my mother, I realized what a strong and good person she was. During her life she had weathered events that could have sidelined others, but her light continued on, so true. She will always be an inspiration to me.
