“ Praying for Marcus's family. Marcus was a very quiet, respectable person. He was always so quiet, but every time we crossed paths whether it was in a building, on the walkway or lots of times we would pass as he was leaving to go get lunch or returning and I would always say hey Marcus and he would always respond hey Darlene how are you? Such a wonderful person. Not many words did he speak but when he did he was very sincere. RIP my friend.

“ Marcus and I would go to lunch together and we would talk about his music and NC A&T. He gave me his contact info prior to leaving Vogtle 3 and 4. My regrets is that I never got to call him. Miss you Brother!! RIP.

“ Marcus used to sit across me; we shared lots of humorous moments and laughs. I used to borrow his mobile phone charging cord. We used to have discussion on politics once in a while. I missed him when he left for Charlotte. I asked him why he was leaving Vogtle and encouraged him to stay, but his reasoning was more compelling. May God bless him and give him peace and his family a courage to brace these challenging moments and face tough days ahead. Marcus we will miss you.

“ One on the most intelligent quietest respectable men I have ever met. I was in shock when he told me he was leaving us at Vogtle. I was even more shocked at his passing. His intelligence was deep rooted in pure common sense. My life was enriched by just knowing Marcus. And my deepest sympathy goes out to his fiancé and son. God Bless you Marcus for just being you.

“ My thoughts and prayers are with the Jacobs Family. “Shocked” is the only word I can use to describe my feelings after reading the news about my friend and former classmate. Thinking back on our time in high school seems like only yesterday. Reminiscing about riding around the Boro in the brown Honda Civic and the basketball battles in the backyard. Those were fun times and great memories. RIP Marcus.

I knew Marcus at Vogtle a bit and always found him to be smart, kind and always respectful. He was diligent in his work and always helpful. He will be missed by many. God's peace to all his family and friends.
